It is planned that the lower floor of the Beech Street branch will be devoted to the club work, which has been so successfully developed here by the Nurses' Settlement. The Brst floor will also shelter the administration rooms and the emergency quarters for the settlement workers. Six or eight rooms on the upper floor will be rented to deserving young girls who desire to live in guarded surroundings. The police were asked yesterday to make search for a young man who on Monday evening attempted to entice ten-year-old Gertrude Crowder, grand-daughter of Assistant Fire Chief O. F. Wise, of 410 West Marshall, Street, into an alley between Monroe and Grace Streets. It is said that the young man lured the girl to the mouth of the alley with promises of candy and toys, and then attempted to blindford her. She became frightened, however, and es-caped. The child was walking with her cousin, Frank Bullington, when when she-was enticed away. EXPRESS RATES

Now Evolving Big Scheme for New Tariff Goes Into Effect October 15, Unless Held

May Prove of Great Value in Chamber Table Shows Cut on Packages to Many Points in Local Territory.

Sweeping reductions in express rates annexation and launched that vexa-tious problem on its final Council course, the Chamber of Commerce leaders are turning their attention to the vital question of providing com-fortable homes at reasonable rentals for the working markets. for the working masses of Richmond, and are collecting some astonishing data on the subject. While not in shape to be given to the public just now, a well-developed scheme, of huge proportions, for solving the "high rent" problem of Richmond is being rapidly developed by officers of the chamber.

The scheme, while entailing a vast outlay of money, is said to be eminently practicable and has been successfully tried in numerous cities larger than Richmond. The hundreds of thousands of dollars required for the fulfilment of the plan will return a generous interest to the subscribers, and will doubtless be forthcoming without delay when W. T. Dabney has announced the scope and possibilities of the scheme.

With this end in view, Mr. Dabney will go to New York to silvit the set of Ruling.

Will become effective on October 15 unless the commission allows the express companies more time for their preparation, or the express companies resist the commission's order, which is not believed likely. New rules and regulations of great benefit to the public have also been promulgated by the commission in a recent decision on the subject of express rates and practices. The commission's action follows complaint filed with it by a number of commercial organizations, including the Traffic Bureau of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce.
